

FOLLIES

E. Porter Graham

The lives of men are comedies. There's always trouble brewing.
Each pretty gal a fellow sees is nearly his undoing.

No matter how his wife may please him, still he's always viewing
Each female curve he can, and Jeez! they get his juices stewing.

These comedies of male dis-ease I fear there's no eschewing—
Unless men turn them tragedies by actually pursuing.

"Follies" © 2007 by E. Porter Graham

Contemporary Rhyme Vol. 4 No. 4 2007