

LAST DRY YEAR

Bruce Boston

When tides are dead
and clouds are gone
and a red sun
lights the land,

when nights are harsh
and deeply felt
as the cracks that
line our hands,

what we have become
will curse the legions
of the past in our lives upon the sand.

“Last Dry Year” © 2004 by Bruce Boston