

REPRISAL

William Walden

A maître d' made this appeal:
"You diners dawdling at your meal,
Please raise the rate at which you eat—
We're crowded and we need your seat."

A diner, understandably
Resenting this unheard-of plea,
Ate slowly till he'd had his fill,
Then pointedly destroyed the bill.

"Reprisal" © 2008 by William Walden

Contemporary Rhyme Vol. 5 No. 1 2008