

THE BLASTER

William Walden

A man named Harvey had a sneeze
So strong it blew the leaves off trees,
So loud it frightened dogs and cattle
And could have summoned troops to battle.

While at a concert, Harvey sneezed.
The maestro, shaken and displeased,
Cut short the music to implore,
“Please favor us with no encore.”

“The Blaster” © 2006 by William Walden