

THE SPIDER'S NAMED PENELOPE

Laura Heidi

Her web is patience—iridescence spun between two twigs. She weaves the morning sun into the dew dripped from the leaf then shrouds herself so carefully that no one knows she waits, until unwarily, they're captives in the glitter of her grief.

“The Spider’s Named Penelope” © 2005 by Laura Heidi