

THIRST DRIVES US ALL

Leland Jamieson

To glimpse truth whole in line and rhyme
which speaks (surprise!) to inner Eye
and Ear, rewards a poet's climb up stony brook-beds often dry.
And should a reader laugh or cry—
his parched thirst slaked, so he can swallow—
the joyful poet toasts Apollo.

"Thirst Drives Us All" © 2006 by Leland Jamieson

Contemporary Rhyme Vol. 3 No. 4 2006